INTRODUCTION

HILL DIRECTORY CO., Inc., publishers of the Norfolk-Portsmouth City Directory, present to subscribers and the general public, this, the 1931 edition of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Directory, which also includes South Norfolk.

Confidence in the continued growth of Norfolk's and Portsmouth's industry, population and wealth, and in the advancement of their civic and social activities, will be created as sections of this directory are consulted, for the directory is a mirror truly reflecting the community to the world.

The enviable position occupied by HILL'S directories in the estimation of the public, has been established by rendering the best in directory service. With an unrivaled organization, and having the courteous and hearty cooperation of the business and professional men and residents, the publishers feel that the result of their labors will meet with the approval of every user, and that the Norfolk-Portsmouth Directory will fulfill its mission as a source of authentic information pertaining to the community.

Four Major Departments

The several essential departments are arranged in the following order:—

THE BUYERS' GUIDE, pages 45 to 148, printed on tinted paper, contains the advertisements of leading manufacturing, business and professional interests of Norfolk and Portsmouth. These pages will be found particularly interesting and instructive to substantial purchasing factors. The advertisements have been carefully grouped by departments and are indexed under headings descriptive of the business represented. This is reference advertising at its best, and, as such, merits a survey by all buyers eager to familiarize themselves with sources of supply. The community's activities, in many interesting phases, are authentically pictured. In a large commercial center like Norfolk and Portsmouth, the necessity of having this kind of information immediately available, is very great, and frequently, pressing. General appreciation of this fact is evidenced by the liberal support the city directory enjoys in the many fields which it serves.

THE ALPHABETICAL LIST OF NAMES of residents, business firms and corporations of Norfolk and South Norfolk is included in pages 149 to 642. A feature of this section is the inclusion of the wife's name in parentheses following that of the husband. A similar list for Portsmouth extends from pages 905 to 1034.

THE DIRECTORY OF HOUSEHOLDERS, INCLUDING STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE, for Norfolk, covers pages 645 to 831. In this section the names of the streets and avenues are arranged in alphabetical order; the residences and business houses are arranged numerically under the name of each street and avenue, and the names of householders and business concerns are placed opposite the numbers. A similar guide for Portsmouth covers pages 1037 to 1078.

THE CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY of Norfolk is included in pages 833 to 896. This department lists the various manufacturing, mercantile and professional interests in alphabetical order under appropriate headings. This feature constitutes an invaluable and indispensable epitome of the business interests of the community. "The Directory is the common intermediary between Buyer and Seller." As such it plays no small part in the daily doings of the business world. "More goods are bought and sold through the Classified Business Directory than through any other medium." A similar directory for Portsmouth appears in pages 1101 to 1114.

Community Publicity

The directory reflects the achievements and ambitions of the community, depicting in truthful terms what it has to offer as a place of residence, as a business location, as an industrial site and as an educational center. To broadcast this information, the publishers have placed copies of this issue of the directory in Directory Libraries, where they are readily available for free public reference, and serve as perpetual and reliable advertisements of Norfolk and Portsmouth, for business men, everywhere, realize that the city directory represents a community as it really is.

The Norfolk-Portsmouth Directory Library

Through the courtesy of the publishers of the Norfolk-Portsmouth City Directory, a Directory Library is maintained in the offices of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce, for free reference by the general public. This is one of 500 Directory Libraries installed in the chief cities of the U. S. and Canada by members of the Association of North American Directory Publishers, under whose supervision the system is operated.

The publishers appreciatively acknowledge the recognition by those progressive business and professional men who have demonstrated their confidence in the city directory as an advertising medium, with assurance that it will bring a commensurate return.

THE NEW NORFOLK

ON HAMPTON ROADS

Its Commerce, Industries, Business, Agriculture, Resorts and Government

By Francis E. Turin and Associates, Norfolk-Portsmouth News Bureau of Norfolk-Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce

"As pleasant a country as ever the sun shined on; temperate, and full of all sorts of excellent viands; wild boar is as common as the tamest bacon; and venison, as mutton.

"And you shall live freely there, without sergeants, or courtiers, or lawyers. You may be an alderman there and never be a scavenger; you may be any officer and never be a slave. You may come to preferment enough—to riches and fortune enough, and have never the more villiany nor the less wit. Besides, there we shall have no more law than conscience, and not too much of either; serve God enough, eat and drink enough, and enough is as good as a feast."—From "EASTWARD HO," an English comedy of 1605.

Such was the English opinion of Tidewater Virginia in 1605. And, with the modifications necessary to three centuries of development, such is the opinion today of those who know that pleasant area at the mouth of the James which centers in the great city of Norfolk. For here men live. There is work enough and play enough all year 'round to make for happiness and contentment.

Nature has favored Norfolk, and its progressive neighbor, Portsmouth, with everything that goes to make up the joys of living. An equable climate the whole year through, never too cold and never too hot. Some of the best surf bathing on the Atlantic Coast, golf at any season, tennis, plenty of hunting and fishing close by—what more could a man ask for contentment?

To the visitor, Norfolk offers all these and more. No section of the country is more closely associated with the early beginnings of this great nation. Such names as Jamestown, Elizabeth, Capes Henry and Charles, bring to mind the romantic tales of the sturdy settlers who landed on these shores more than 300 years ago. Captain John Smith, Pocahontas, Virginia Dare—what school boy or girl doesn't know all about these characters of American history? Here is the shrine of America's birth-place to which thousands of pilgrims come every year, and at Yorktown, not far away, Cornwallis' surrender to Washington put an end to the Revolutionary War.

It was in 1682 that Norfolk was established as an English trading post in what was then the new colony of Virginia. Only 75 years before that, Captain John Smith had founded the first permanent English settlement at Jamestown. The struggle of the early settlers against the ravages of disease and the depredations of the Indians is one of the most romantic chapters of early American history.

Standing as the great gateway to rich and fertile regions beyond, Norfolk has always borne the brunt of attack in time of war. During the early days of the American Revolution, Norfolk was bombarded, captured and almost totally destroyed by the British fleet under Lord Dunmore. During the Civil War, Norfolk was again captured and partially destroyed by the Union forces. The first battle between ironclad vessels of war, the Merrimac and Monitor, was fought in Hampton Roads, just below Norfolk.

From her earliest days Norfolk has been one of the most important points of military and naval strategy in the country. Today she boasts of one of the biggest navy yards in the world, together with an extensive system of naval supply and operations. Norfolk also is the central point of an elaborate system of coast defense fortifications maintained by the Army.

In the World War, Norfolk became a point of prime importance in the movement of great bodies of troops and supplies to France, and as a naval training station and supply base it was second to none. The industrial and commercial development of Norfolk-Portsmouth was greatly quickened by the war. Today it is not only the first coal port and the first tobacco port in the United States, but it is growing rapidly as a point for the shipment of general merchandise to the Pacific Coast and to foreign countries.

Numerous large industrial plants have recently been established in this area. To industry, Norfolk and Portsmouth offer distinct advantages that are attracting more and more outside capital, namely: the availability of cheap raw materials, low freight rates to the great consuming markets, and an abundance of labor.

Norfolk and Portsmouth stand today in the forefront of Southern progress. An industrial commission has been organized to aid industries seeking locations here, a freight traffic bureau manned by experts is employed to maintain and improve Norfolk's position as a shipping and distributing center, and a large fund has been subscribed by the citizens of Norfolk and Portsmouth to develop the community.

Norfolk, during the past few years, has forged to the front as one of the progressive cities of the new South. Giant strides have been made in development work, municipal and otherwise. The results obtained thus far are only an indication of accomplishments to follow.

Location

Norfolk is situated on the famous harbor of Hampton Roads, midway of the Atlantic Coast, and eighteen miles from the Virginia Capes, Henry and Charles, in latitude 37° north and longitude 76° west.

To European, United Kingdom, Asiatic, Oriental, South American and West Coast ports, Norfolk is generally 300 miles closer than Baltimore; while eight trunk line railroads connect the port with the North, Northwest, Middle West and South. The balmy climate permits maximum movement of shipping the year 'round, as the harbor is entirely free of ice in the coldest winter months, and this same climate has been responsible for the development around Norfolk, of the largest truck-growing section in the country.

Population and Area

Norfolk has a population of 129,710, according to the U. S. Census of 1930. The population of Portsmouth, a sister city across the Elizabeth River is 45,704. Norfolk and Portsmouth are in fact one community, although each city has its own government. The two cities are connected by bridges and ferries.

In sales analyses, distribution, etc., national advertising agencies and manufacturers consider Norfolk and Portsmouth as one market.

The metropolitan population of Norfolk and Portsmouth is approximately 500,000. The area is the largest metropolitan area in Virginia. In the area are: Virginia Beach, famous seashore resort; Ocean View, famous bay resort; Newport News; South Norfolk, and numerous small towns.

History

Several hundred years ago the site of Norfolk was occupied by an Indian village called Skicoak, within twenty miles of the spot where the earliest permanent English settlers in America made their first landing.

Christopher Newport, with the three vessels under his command, landed at Cape Henry on April 26, 1607, before settling at Jamestown a few weeks later. Captain John Smith was a member of the party, but at the time of the Cape Henry landing he is said to have been imprisoned in irons on one of the vessels.

This section of the state at that time was inhabited by the Chesapeake Indians, one of the many tribes under Powhatan, with whom Captain Newport's men had a skirmish immediately after landing. They used the surrounding territory as a hunting ground, over which small bands were continually roving.

The land covered by Norfolk County was granted in 1636 to Henry Frederick Howard, Lord Maltravers, a relative of the Duke of Norfolk, and he named it Norfolk.

The counties of Nansemond, Norfolk and Princess Anne were originally one—called New Norfolk County. Shortly after being explored, the territory was divided into Upper and Lower Norfolk Counties. Upper Norfolk is now Nansemond County, and Lower Norfolk is now Norfolk and Princess Anne counties.

The entire section was laid off in parishes and a church was erected in each parish. The settlers established themselves on farms along the bays and rivers, where they built wharves at which ships from England and Holland could land and discharge and receive their cargoes. For seventy-five years after the settlement at Jamestown in 1607, there were no other towns of any importance in Virginia. The town of Norfolk was founded in 1682 on a tract of fifty acres of land purchased by an act of the Virginia Assembly from Nicholas Wise, for 10,000 pounds of tobacco.

The grant was to Captain William Robinson and Lieutenant Colonel Anthony Lawson, feoffees in trust for the county, and embraced all the land on the Elizabeth River from the eastern to the western end of the present Main Street, and bounded on the north by what was then known as Back Creek (which flowed from the river eastwardly to Church Street along the present location of City Hall Avenue and Cove Street) and by Newton Creek (which, running in from the Eastern Branch, came up nearly to Church Street on its eastern side).

In October, 1705, after considerable growth resulting from its favorable situation for trade and commerce, Norfolk was, by act of Assembly, regularly established as a town.

On September 15, 1736, the "Royal Charter of Norfolk Borough" was granted by the governor, authorizing a "borough incorporate" and providing for a mayor, a recorder, eight aldermen and sixteen councilmen.

The limits were enlarged in 1761 to take in all the land south of a line running from the head of Newton's Creek to the head of Smith's Creek (crossing Church Street near Princess Anne Avenue).

The oldest building in the city is St. Paul's Church, built in 1739, on "the road leading out of town," from which Church Street took its name.

On January 1, 1776, during the Revolutionary War, Norfolk was completely destroyed by fire. The walls of Old St. Paul's Church remained standing practically alone. Historical records fail to show clearly whether the town was burned by the British under Lord Dunmore during this bombardment, or by the citizens to prevent the British from quartering troops among them. It is true, however, that the town, rebuilt on the old site, did not take on an active building spirit until 1783, after which date its growth was rapid. Norfolk became a city by act of Assembly on February 13, 1845, at which time many amendments were made to its charter.

Army and Navy Activities

Hampton Roads had been the rendezvous for the American Navy ever since there was one. In the early part of 1917, when the newspapers were referring to the American fleet as "swallowed up somewhere in the mists of the Atlantic," it had secretly slipped out of the harbor of Hampton Roads and was resting at Yorktown, a few miles up Chesapeake Bay, awaiting orders. Through Hampton Roads, during the World War, thousands of men, countless shiploads of horses, food and munitions and swift fleets of destroyers passed out to the aid of the Allies.

At Old Point Comfort, so named by Captain John Smith, is Fort Monroe, where Jefferson Davis was confined for a time at the close of the Civil War. And just off the fort is the place where those historic ironclads, the Monitor and Merrimac, revolutionized naval warfare in their bitter duel. In Norfolk's inner harbor is old Fort Norfolk, of the War of 1812.

Even before the War of the Revolution the British had recognized the availability of the Elizabeth River as a naval base, and Gosport Navy Yard, now Norfolk Navy Yard, at Portsmouth, was built for the accommodation of British warships stationed to "protect," if not to coerce, the colonies.

The scene of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, while not on a tributary of Hampton Roads, was sufficiently close for the French fleet to base on Hampton Roads and prevent the British squadrons from going to relief of His Lordship and his army in their final stand.

Had the American navy been based in Hampton Roads, and the Virginia Capes properly fortified in 1812, a comparatively small naval force would have been able to prevent the British fleet from passing up Chesapeake Bay and sacking the National Capital.

But that experience taught the United States a lesson and soon after the Treaty of Ghent was signed, preparations were made for utilizing the great natural waterway as a naval base.

By the time the clouds of the War between the States were gathering, the Gosport (now the Norfolk) Navy Yard, at Portsmouth, was a bee-hive of activity, and when Governor Wise ordered the Virginia troops to seize the station, the Federal Government recognized its material and strategic importance to the south. The attempt to burn the Navy Yard was foiled through the protests of the citizens of Portsmouth, although it was damaged considerably before the Union force evacuated it.

In the hands of the Confederate troops, the Navy Yard played an important part in the early days of the war, and had the South been able to hold Hampton Roads as a base, some historians believe that the conflict would have been brought to a speedy and different conclusion long before 1865.

It was after the War between the States that the United States again realized more fully than ever the strategic value of Hampton Roads. The development of what was soon named the Norfolk Navy Yard followed.

By the time of the Spanish-American War the port was the rendezvous for the Atlantic fleet, and the naval force which whipped the Spaniards off Santiago was outfitted largely at the Navy Yard. A number of the warships which participated in the battle had been built at the Navy Yard and at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, which had been established only a few years before.

Naval authorities will tell today that the men-o'-war which have glided into the waters of the James and the Elizabeth Rivers have had no superiors in the fighting craft of their time.

It was not until the European War came on that Hampton Roads gained its world-wide prominence as a base of supplies for military and naval forces. The dream of Maury came true, for in the early stages of the conflict—long before America became involved—the armies of the world were turning their eyes toward Hampton Roads. Not only the Allies looked to Hampton Roads to supply their millions of fighting men with food, equipment, and almost everything, but the German submarine which ran the gauntlet of the British blockade sought Hampton Roads as its landing place.

The strategists of the American army and navy, long before the general public had an inkling that the country was preparing to enter the war, had picked Hampton Roads as the logical base for naval activity and for the dispatch of troops, foodstuffs and ammunition and practically everything that would be needed by the American troops on European battlefields. Almost over night there sprang up on the shores of Hampton Roads the organization which manned the port of embarkation at Newport News and the Hampton Roads operating base on the Norfolk side, from which were dispatched the convoys, both American and Allied, which turned the tide against the German hosts.

Then came the army base development near Sewall's Point, which, although not completed in time to play a prominent part in the conflict, nevertheless contributed its share in bringing troops and surplus supplies back across the Atlantic.

Disarmament agreements, or rather limitations of armaments, naturally have affected Hampton Roads as a naval and military base, but her record stands unsurpassed whenever the country has faced a crisis. And unless some political upheaval should overturn the policy of the government, Hampton Roads will continue as the greatest naval base on the Atlantic Coast, for, as the late Secretary of the Navy Denby remarked, not long ago on boarding a transport en route to Japan: "You have about all the naval activity on the coast concentrated here."

By way of parenthesis it may be remarked that the millions the government has spent in the naval and military development of Hampton Roads will not be lost, for swords, so to speak, are being beaten into plowshares by the utilization of the army base for commercial purposes and the great shipyard at Newport News for building merchant vessels, for car repairing, and other commercial work.

Navy Yard

The Norfolk Navy Yard has an area of 362 acres measured to the pierhead line. Of this, 282 acres are land and 80 acres are water. The St. Helena reservation across the Elizabeth River has, in addition, 91 acres, of which 63 acres are hard land and 28 acres are water. This makes a total of 453 acres, comparing as follows with other principal yards:

Portsmouth, N. H.....	208 acres
Boston.....	124 acres
New York.....	199 acres
Philadelphia.....	1,058 acres
(Including 135 of new fill, about one - fourth hard land, two-thirds marsh and the rest water)
Charleston.....	1,193 acres
Mare Island, Cal.....	1,565 acres
Puget Sound.....	387 acres

The Norfolk yard has 212 buildings, with a total floor space of about 50 acres. The Norfolk yard has 30 berths on the Navy Yard side of the river, totalling more than 9,000 feet, nearly two miles. All this distance has 30 feet depth of water alongside, and two-thirds of it has 35 feet or more.

Nearly a quarter of all the naval dry docks in continental United States and a third of those on the Atlantic Seaboard are situated at the Norfolk yard. No other United States Navy Yard anywhere else has so many. There are six of them, ranging from 1,011 feet to 324 in length and from 40 feet, 3 inches, depth of water (mean high water to keel blocks) in the case of the long dock to 15 feet, 10 inches, in the case of one of the short ones.

Portsmouth, N. H., has a single dock of about the same dimensions as the second largest at Norfolk. Boston has three docks, of which the largest is slightly greater than the large one at Norfolk, but while Navy-owned, it is not at the Boston Navy Yard, and is hence remote from large ships.

New York has four, none of which approaches the Norfolk dock in size; Philadelphia, three, one of which matches the largest at Norfolk; Charleston one, of about the average size of the six Norfolk docks; Mare Island two, rating about with the second largest at Norfolk and one comparing with the Norfolk average size. Puget Sound has three dry docks, two of them comparing approximately with the second largest Norfolk dock. The third is longer, but has a depth of water only equal to that of the two smallest Norfolk docks. Only two yards of those named, besides Norfolk, have dry docks with sufficient depth of water to have taken the U. S. S. Orion in the crippled condition in which she came into Norfolk on the night of December 2, 1925.

When the United States entered the World War in 1917, Hampton Roads became one of the principal ports on the Atlantic seaboard open for the rapid handling of supplies for the prospective American Expeditionary Forces in France. The War Department soon began the construction of a $25,000,000 army supply base at Norfolk, as well as the establishment of an engineers' department.

Army Base

The Army Base, which is now under lease to private interests, includes two piers of reinforced concrete and steel construction, each of which is 1,328 feet long and 300 feet wide, with an area of 796,800 square feet; eight warehouses with 94 bays, with space in each bay of 22,400 square feet, a total of 2,105,000 square feet. More than 2,000,000 tons of U. S. Army supplies were dispatched overseas from Norfolk during the period of the war. A quarter million horses and mules were shipped overseas for the use of the allied armies.

Naval Operating Base

The Hampton Roads Naval Operating Base, one of the most modern in the world, was also established and is still maintained on a waterfront site occupying 950 acres, with berthing accommodations at piers to the extent of 6,500 lineal feet. There are four main activities at the base, and, in addition, it serves as headquarters for the Norfolk Naval District, Training Station, Air Station, Supply Station and Submarine Base.

The Training Station has two schools—one for the training of recruits for the fleet, and the other for the instruction of petty officers and enlisted men in schools for technical work of the Navy, covering virtually every branch of the service as follows: Electrical, radio, bakers, machinist, mate, musicians, and for enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps desiring to apply for entrance to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. During the World War nearly 50,000 men were trained at the station, and half that number graduated from the technical schools. As many as 14,500 men were on the station at one time during August, 1918.

The Supply Station is used as a base for the fleet and it represents the largest single activity of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, handling supplies for the United States fleet, no matter where located, for the European squadrons, Guantanamo, and other operations far and near. The station is perhaps the finest example of naval efficiency in the service, being organized along lines of a business establishment. It occupies 12 warehouses with a total floor space of 55 acres. Naval passengers, baggage and supplies are forwarded through the station to the Pacific Coast, the West Indies, and other ports, transports making scheduled sailings, while supply ships go from the base to all parts of the world. Under the supply station also comes the Navy's principal fuel reserve, located at Sewall's Point in Norfolk, with a capacity of 300,000 tons of coal. There is also a fuel oil depot at the base itself with a capacity in two tanks of more than 100,000 barrels.

Adjoining the Naval Base is the Hampton Roads Naval Air Base on the Atlantic seaboard. The Hampton Roads Naval Base rounds out its service for operations in peace times or war on the surface, in the air, or under water. In peace times, its mission is to keep the air squadrons attached to the Atlantic division in repair, and its plant is capable of overhauling and conditioning sixty planes annually. Naval Reserve air officers are also trained at the station, as well as enlisted men seeking to qualify as pilots or mechanics and for instruction of regular officers in flying. From a strategic point of view, the Hampton Roads Air Base is invaluable in the event of a national emergency. Upon its personnel would devolve the duty of patrolling the coast from Henlopen to Hatteras, as well as convoying ships, in addition to forming an important feature of the nation's mobile defense.

The Submarine Base has facilities for 50 underwater craft.

Fortress Monroe

Fortress Monroe is one of the largest and most important coast fortifications in this country. Within its walls are 68 acres. The fort is laid off as an irregular hexagon, with three sides to the sea and three to the land. It commands the entrance to Hampton Roads and the Chesapeake, and guards the back door to Washington and New York. The walls are fifty feet thick and fifty feet high. The moat does not add much to the security of the fort, but surely adds much of its beauty. The water is about six feet deep and is always fresh from the sea.

The interior of the fort resembles a park rather than a fort. The houses, lawns, flowers, walks, trees and buildings are all suggestive of peace and tranquility. One thousand men are on guard and often more, with 50 officers. Parades and various exercises are held daily.

Crossing the bridge over the moat one enters by the main "sally-port." Turning to the right a short walk leads to "Casement No 2," where President Jefferson Davis was a prisoner after the war. Just beyond this the "garrison flag" flies from the summit of the bastion. To make the circuit of the entire fort walking on the summit of the bastion over the moat gives a fine view of the fort and of the water beyond.

The guns of various sizes and makes, the searchlights, barracks, canteen, library, war museum, are all worthy of inspection and study.

Fortress Monroe bears the name of President James Monroe, under whose administration it was begun. Fort Calhoun was begun (1830) on Wiltoughby Shoals, but was never completed. During the Civil War the name was changed to Fort Wool, but the local name has always been the "Rip Raps." Fishing off the "Rip Raps" is excellent.

Fort Story

Fort Story, which was recently established at Cape Henry, is designed to become the most powerful fortification on the Atlantic Coast. Its guns guard the entrance to Chesapeake bay and protect the nation's capital at Washington, as well as the Army and Navy operations around Norfolk.

Commercial Development

The site of Norfolk, with its wonderful ice-free harbor and its nearness to the ocean, from the earliest days of the American Colonies, has been marked by students of economic geography as a spot designed by nature to be one of the world's greatest ports.

Back of and naturally tributary to this port is that bank of states formerly composing the great Northwestern Territory which once belonged to the state of Virginia, and which was ceded by Virginia to the United States Government in order to mollify the sensitiveness of her northern neighbors. Out of this territory were created the states of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and parts of others.

When one considers the possibilities for the development of this territory and the movement of its trade through Virginia's gateway, one is led to wonder why Norfolk today is not the largest city on the Atlantic Coast.

Matthew Fontaine Maury, the great geographer, was not the first deep student to perceive the potentialities of the port, but his opinion is worth recording because his is recognized as a voice of authority.

In an official survey, Maury envisioned these states as tributary to the port of Hampton Roads, on which Norfolk is situated. He declared that their transportation system should draw through Hampton Roads to Europe, and he demonstrated on a chart that the route through Norfolk places this territory nearer to Europe than any other route through the northern ports.

In view of the city's giant strides of the last twenty years, the circumstances which in times past retarded her growth are at this time particularly interesting.

Norfolk had her real beginning on June 8, 1680, when the Virginia Assembly passed an act authorizing the purchase of fifty acres of land to form the town. The purchase was made on August 16 of the same year, from Nicholas Wise, a carpenter, and the price paid was ten thousand pounds of tobacco—for tobacco at that time passed current for money in Virginia.

Before that time, it will be remembered, Virginia settlers had established themselves on farms along the bays and rivers, where they built wharves at which ships from England and Holland could discharge and receive their cargoes. Virginia is cut up by a number of rivers and estuaries tributary to Chesapeake Bay, and this configuration of the terrain made it possible for the old vessels, with their small draught, to come right to the farmer's door. This retarded, of course, the growth of large trading centers.

It was realized, however, that this condition could not last always; and it was for this reason that the Colonial government planned to lay out towns for the purpose. The site of Norfolk, on account of its logical location, was selected for the first of these.

Norfolk became a full-fledged town in 1705, and by 1728, according to Forrest's "Historical and Descriptive Sketches," "the business of the place had greatly increased and a very considerable number added to the population."

"Its situation," this old book continues, "presented all the requisite advantages for commerce, navigation, and a profitable investment of capital. A brisk trade was carried on with the West Indies, whither large quantities of flour, lumber, beef, pork, etc., were exported; in return for which were imported abundant supplies of sugar, molasses, rum and fruits. Twenty or thirty brigs and smaller vessels constantly rode at the wharves; the merchants and mechanics all appeared to be actively engaged and prospering; a number of stores and dwellings were erected, real estate advanced in price, and there was no good reason for doubting that Norfolk would ere the present day (1853), be a very large and flourishing city, if not the largest upon the whole coast."

Up to the time of the Revolutionary War, Norfolk was, in fact, maintaining a leading position in the foreign commerce of the United States. The city was then importing from the West Indies, South America, and Europe, and exporting to the same countries and others.

When the Revolution broke out, the first bloodshed on Virginia soil was at Great Bridge, eight miles from Norfolk, on December 9, 1775. The British retired to their ships at Norfolk, and on the morning of January 1, 1776, opened a furious bombardment. The whole town was soon in flames. It burned for three days and was completely destroyed. The walls of old St. Paul's Episcopal Church were left standing.

Seven years after the war, Norfolk was fast regaining its former position as a port. Then, of course, there were no railroads, and better means of transportation became necessary. The Dismal Swamp Canal was commenced in 1787 to form a more direct highway between the navigable waters of the states of Virginia and North Carolina. It was finally opened for navigation in 1828.

That was the first line of transportation. Later the Albermarle and Chesapeake Canal was built, and it is now operated by the government as a part of the inland waterways system.

Work on the first railroad, the Portsmouth and Roanoke, was started in 1835. Norfolk citizens subscribed to the stock, and Portsmouth and the State of Virginia also contributed. The road was completed at that time, only to Weldon, then foreclosed, and bought by the State.

During this critical period, the port of Norfolk failed to develop in keeping with its natural facilities, for the want of adequate connections with the interior. It had only the two small canals, and nothing else.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad had been chartered in 1827, and was an active factor in building up the business of Baltimore. The Erie Canal was also completed and paying dividends long before the Civil War. The State of Virginia had started work on the James River Canal, but the war interrupted.

At the beginning of the Civil War, to be sure, the road from Portsmouth to Weldon had been completed, and just before 1859 there was constructed a railway from Norfolk to Petersburg. When the Civil War was over, the first of these had been worn out. The Federals had taken possession of Norfolk and had removed all the steel off the Norfolk end, while the Confederates had taken it off the Petersburg end. The ties had rotted and there was nothing there but the right of way.

The northern ports, having been open throughout the war, had forged ahead. The Erie Canal first made New York, and then the city got its railroads to enable it to maintain the advantage. Industries naturally began to establish themselves along the railroads serving the northern ports, and commercial habits were established which it has been exceedingly difficult to break.

Conditions at Norfolk remained almost dormant until 1870, when the Norfolk and Virginia Railroad, the Southside Railroad, and the Tennessee and Virginia Railroad were organized into what was called the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio Railroad.

Then Norfolk began to get a little business. All this business and trackage was taken over several years later by the Norfolk and Western Railway.

There was then no fuel on Hampton Roads, no commerce and no improvements. The commerce of the early days had gradually been taken to the ports having better facilities for distribution.

The Norfolk and Western, in the course of events, built from Radford, up in the coal fields, and brought in the first car of coal in 1883. That was the beginning of the traffic that has made modern Norfolk the world's greatest coal port.

As late as 1886, the city of Norfolk entered into negotiations with the Atlantic Coast Line and the old Richmond and Danville Railroad to build in to Norfolk. The building of a road that is now a part of the Coast Line system resulted.

About the same time the Southern Railway was spending three or four million dollars in an effort to establish a port at West Point, on the York River. The railway operated to its terminals there for some years until it became convinced of its mistake, and made a trackage arrangement over the Atlantic Coast Line whereby it could use the port of Norfolk. Terminals were built adjoining the Coast Line warehouses and piers. Later the Southern obtained possession of trackage connecting with its main line at Danville.

The Norfolk Southern was built comparatively recently down the bank of the Dismal Swamp Canal to points in North Carolina, and now has 1,000 miles of trackage. The Pennsylvania Railroad built down the Eastern Shore peninsula of Virginia in 1884, and established boat and barge connection between Cape Charles and Norfolk.

The Virginian Railway completed its fine coal-carrying road to Norfolk in 1907, after the City Council had agreed to donate a sum sufficient to purchase seven miles of right of way to Sewall's Point, where the dumping piers were to be built. These terminals are in territory which was recently taken into the city limits by annexation.

Thus it can be seen that Norfolk's failure to develop in keeping with reasonable expectations was due almost entirely to an early lack of adequate inland transportation facilities, while rival ports were more fortunate in this respect. One reason for this, as has already been intimated, was the development of Virginia and her southern neighbors almost exclusively along agricultural lines, and the feasibility of shipping directly from the farms, while vessels were of small draft.

Growth up to 1870, in short, was practically negligible. Norfolk then had a population of 19,229, about half of which were negroes. It has grown since that time because of, and to the extent of, its increasing railroad facilities. The population by 1880 had increased to 21,966; by 1890, to 34,871; by 1900, to 46,624; by 1910, to 67,452, and by 1920, to 115,777. The U. S. census of 1930 gives Norfolk a population of 129,710.

The story of Norfolk's rapid rise in the export field in recent years is a story of grit and determination on the part of her own citizens, together with the example of the World War, when Norfolk was utilized so extensively for the shipment of army supplies overseas.

Before recounting these achievements, however, it would be well to outline the development of the Norfolk and Portsmouth Belt Line Railroad, which has been declared by experts to be one of the greatest assets possessed by any port or industrial city.

The story of the Belt Line begins with the building of the Pennsylvania Railroad down the Eastern Shore peninsula. Before 1884, there was but one gateway for passenger and freight service between the North and South, and that was by way of Baltimore and Washington.

The year before, A. J. Cassatt, then a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had bought the stock of the old Eastern Shore Railroad, extending from Delmar, Delaware, then the southern end of the Pennsylvania, to King's Creek and Crisfield. He also had purchased the stock of the Peninsular Railroad, which ran to the north shore of the Pocomoke river, opposite Pocomoke City, Md.

In the fall of 1883, Mr. Cassatt had commenced the construction of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, from Pocomoke City to Cape Charles City, and the rebuilding of the old Eastern Shore and Peninsular railroads. These roads were completed in November, 1884, and began handling passengers and freight to Norfolk.

This made the second gateway between the North and the South. For a number of years the barges of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad landed for loading and unloading at the different car float bridges of the Norfolk railroads, and were unloaded and loaded by engines and crews of the Norfolk railroads. This method caused delays in the movement of the floating equipment of the N. Y. P and N. Railroad.

In 1896, Mr. Cassatt conceived the idea of building a terminal where all freight cars for his road could be assembled and where the barges could be loaded and unloaded by the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk road's engines and crews.

Surveys for this terminal, as well as the Norfolk and Portsmouth Belt Line Railroad (then known as the Southeastern and Atlantic Railroad), were started in June, 1896, and both were completed in 1898.

The Belt Line was so located and constructed as to give a physical connection with the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, and all the railroads having their terminals at Norfolk, Portsmouth and vicinity, which were: Seaboard and Roanoke (now Seaboard Air Line Railway), Norfolk and Southern (now Norfolk Southern Railroad), Norfolk and Western Railway, Atlantic and Danville Railway (now leased by Southern Railway), Southern Railway, Norfolk and Carolina Railroad (now the Atlantic Coast Line), and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, whose connection with the Belt Line was through the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad's yard at Port Norfolk until December, 1922. During the latter month the Belt Line completed a float bridge at Sewall's Point, which gave the Chesapeake and Ohio a direct connection.

Waterfront and Warehouse Section

Mr. Cassatt purchased the right of way for and financed the construction of the Belt Line. When it was completed he turned over to each of the railroads named an eighth interest without any profit. In 1915, the Virginian Railway, which had been constructed several years earlier, purchased an equal interest.

The Belt Line started operations with two small locomotives and now owns twenty, most of them having twice as much tractive efforts as the original engines.

The original purchase for which the Belt Line was constructed was to assemble freight northbound and southbound by way of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad at a common point to facilitate the movement across the Bay to and from Cape Charles City. It was only later that the wonderful possibilities of the line in building up industrial operations and stimulating overseas commerce were fully recognized.

The initial agreement between the roads owning the Belt Line provided that the rates to and from points on the line should not exceed the rates to and from Norfolk and Portsmouth. This arrangement acted as a powerful agency for attracting industries to locate in the section. At the present time, the Belt Line serves 116 different industries and sidings.

In order to take advantage of the commercial opportunities offered by the Belt Line, it was seen that there should be created modern municipal overseas terminals open on equal terms to all steamship lines, and with free switching service from all the railroad lines coming into port. The roads owning the Belt Line absorb all charges from shifting one to the other.

With this ambition in view, the city of Norfolk in 1916 purchased about 120 acres of land near Sewall's Point, with 2,400 feet of frontage on the Elizabeth River, and made plans for building a pier and warehouses.

The United States entered the World War in April, 1917, at which time work on the terminals was already in progress. The War Department, recognizing the paramount advantages offered by Norfolk as a base for storage and shipment of supplies to the army overseas, proposed to the city to take over the terminal property for the construction of a quartermaster's supply station in exchange for another equivalent area nearby with about an equivalent frontage on the river. This was consummated, and piers, warehouses and classification yards were built by the government at a cost of about $30,000,000. The Belt Line was, of course, extended to these terminals.

As soon as practicable after the war the development of terminals was again taken up by the city. The army base, now no longer needed for war activities, offered the very facilities that had been needed, and as a consequence the city effected a lease on them.

In order to have an agency for operating its newly-acquired terminals, the city formed a port commission as an official body to develop foreign commerce. The army supply base under that lease was successfully operated for some years.

A large and rapidly-increasing business was developed for the port. The principal commodities for export were cotton and tobacco, with many other articles moving in smaller quantities.

It soon became evident, however, that dependable steamship service with regular sailings was absolutely necessary to a port in competition with the northern trade centers; and that under the existing conditions, neither the railroads nor the port commission could secure shipments of a great many of the leading importers and exporters whose business was flowing through the northern ports.

To secure more steamship lines and regularity of sailings, it was necessary that the ships should have what is called a balanced cargo—that is, some heavy weight.

It became plain that this difficulty might be met by the erection of a modern elevator that could handle grain, to supplement the lighter cotton and tobacco. Plans in the meantime were also going forward for the construction of a municipal terminal on the city's own property, for use when the government should see fit to take back the army base.

As soon as it had been demonstrated that the need of grain was essential for the port's future, a campaign was begun for making the elevator a reality. A bond issue of $5,000,000 to build the elevator and a municipal pier and warehouse was proposed. Opponents of the measure stipulated that the grain elevator ought to be leased and not operated by the city, but all quarters were satisfied about the rest of the proposed terminal, because the port commission was then successfully operating the army supply base. The elevator was completed in 1923.

The army base terminals and the new city pier were leased in the summer of 1925 by the Norfolk Tidewater Terminals, Inc., a subsidiary of the chain of terminals, of which Harvey C. Miller, of Philadelphia, is president. The City Port Commission at that time retired from their operation, and the lessees are now developing the business on a larger scale than has even been possible before. The grain elevator was not involved in the lease.

During 1928, the City of Norfolk leased the grain elevator and all municipal piers to the Norfolk and Western Railway. The piers and elevator are now being operated by the Norfolk and Western Railway.

The remarkable growth of Norfolk's port business during the last several years, which has attracted widespread attention, has been the result of these progressive measures. Within the last decade the volume of export traffic has increased more than ten times, while the amount of imports has doubled.

In 1918 the city government of Norfolk was completely reorganized and the commission-city-manager-form was adopted. Under this administration the $5,000,000 was expended on the municipal port terminal and grain elevator; $6,000,000 on a new water supply system that practically eliminates the possibility of a shortage; between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 on new and modern street improvements; $500,000 on a modern city market, and several millions more for general improvements to the police and fire departments and to other governmental facilities.

Hampton Roads proper, the greater part of which is Norfolk's natural harbor, has an area of forty-one square miles, with extensive frontage having access to deep water. The natural configuration of the shore line, accommodating as it does a number of branching estuaries, has operated to stimulate the development of terminal projects by many and varied interests, and has obviated the necessity for crowded terminal development within a restricted zone.

Warehouses and Terminals

The railroad terminal developments at Norfolk are of the "fan" or "head-in" type. In other words, the railroad approaches the waterfront at right angles, fans out into terminal yards, and tracks extend directly onto the piers, which have been built out toward deep water at some favoring point.

It is commonly the case at other ports that railroad rights-of-way parallel the waterfront in such a way as to exclude other interests from its use. Under such type of development not only is the waterfront likely to be wastefully occupied, but the railroad itself is frequently handicapped by reason of restricted yard area and the use of quays instead of piers, or by longer handling from cars to shipside in case piers are used.

The waterfront of Norfolk-Portsmouth Harbor approximately 50 statute miles in length, all located along improved channels, or along natural channels, continuations of the improved, upon which harbor lines have been established, and which are being used for industrial purposes.

The people of Hampton Roads cities have in the last decade, by their progressive efforts, created a port condition that has resulted in manifold increase in foreign trade. The result is that, today, with more than ample terminal facilities, unexcelled rail transportation, general cargo service to every quarter of the globe, and a geographic situation excelled by no port on the American Continent, Hampton Roads has become one of the vital factors in the commerce of this country.

The eight trunk line railroads centering at the port have excellent terminal facilities, which include the most modern coal piers in the world, as well as merchandise piers and storage warehouses.

The Belt Line

All eight railroads are linked on the Norfolk side by the Norfolk & Portsmouth Belt Line, owned jointly by the eight roads, and declared by transportation experts to be one of the most valuable assets possessed by any port or city in the country. It provides for efficient interchange of traffic from one road to another, serves industries and commercial establishments and connects with steamship terminals. It serves directly Norfolk's municipal piers, and the municipal grain elevator now under lease to the Norfolk and Western Railway. It also serves the Army Base Piers operated by the Norfolk Tidewater Terminals, Inc.

On all through and line-haul traffic, the switching charges of the Belt Line are absorbed in the Norfolk rate.

Railroad Service

The eight railroads entering Norfolk are: Atlantic Coast Line, from Norfolk to the South and Southeast, traversing the cotton and tobacco-growing states, as well as the lumber-producing areas of that territory.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway (recently taken into the VanSweringen system, with the Erie, the Nickel Plate and other roads), with main terminals at Newport News, and with a terminal also in Norfolk connected by ferry service across Hampton Roads. This road traverses Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky, with termini at Chicago and Cleveland and with connections to the Middle West, and is a feeder from the coal fields, manufacturing and agricultural areas.

Norfolk & Western Railway, to the Middle West, with connections to the South and Southwest, serving the bituminous coal fields of Virginia and West Virginia, the agricultural and manufacturing areas, and connecting with the big western railroads in every direction.

Norfolk Southern Railroad, serving eastern and central North Carolina, with their great tobacco, cotton and lumber areas.

Pennsylvania Railroad, operating into Norfolk by passenger steamers and car floats, connecting directly with the North and Northeast, as well as the Northwest. This road recently constructed a new terminal on the shore of Chesapeake Bay to expedite movement of traffic to Cape Charles, where its most southerly rail line from New York and Philadelphia terminates.

Seaboard Air Line Railway, to the South, Southeast and Southwest, serving the port from the cotton, tobacco and lumber producing fields.

Southern Railway, to the Southern part of Virginia, and connecting with the greater system which traverses the manufacturing and agricultural areas of the South.

Virginian Railway, serving the bituminous coal fields of Virginia and West Virginia, as well as the agricultural and industrial territory along its line, and connecting with western railroads, thus providing a third artery of traffic from the West.

In recent years the Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio and Virginian roads have spent millions on the development of terminal facilities along modern lines. The Virginian, early in 1925, completed a second coal pier at a cost of more than $3,000,000, more than doubling its facilities for this commodity. The Norfolk & Western has electrified its old coal piers, increasing its capacity for handling fuel, which other extensive improvements have also been made. The Chesapeake & Ohio has enlarged its merchandise-handling facilities and storage capacity at Newport News, and plans have been drawn for an additional coal pier.

Steamship Lines

From a total of one thousand ships in foreign trade entering and clearing the port of Hampton Roads in 1914, the movement grew to 3,100 in 1924, according to figures of the United States Custom House. This figure was even further increased in 1925.

Approximately fifty steamship lines, both American and foreign, including one home-owned line, regularly serve the port of Hampton Roads—a far greater number than before the World War. These lines have ships sailing the seven seas—between the Atlantic coast and the Pacific, as well as to the Far East. Two of the lines have passenger service to the United Kingdom and Central European ports. It has been demonstrated that the possibilities of securing favorable rates and service in the intercoastal and Far Eastern trade offer advantages that cannot be overestimated. Of the ships carrying exports out of Hampton Roads, nearly seventy-five per cent of cargoes are destined for European ports; twenty-one per cent go to the Far East; and seven per cent to Canada.

Also of vital importance as feeders to Hampton Roads are the coastwise and river steamship lines operating in and out of Norfolk, Newport News and Portsmouth, and connecting the port with the North Atlantic, and with Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina points.

The modern export, import and merchandise terminals are divided with respect to ownership into three principal groups, viz: Railroad and steamship, municipal and independent.

By the use of the term "steamship terminals," reference is made to those owned or operated by coastwise, bay and river lines only, and not overseas steamship lines. In the case of the latter, owing to peculiar local conditions and the encouragement given to the establishment and maintenance of such services, and the fact that no wharfage charge is assessed against the vessels, these lines do not maintain or lease terminals. They make use of the facilities of the railroads, the terminals of the municipality of Norfolk or such independent terminals as are engaged in handling export and import cargoes.

The railroad and steamship terminals include a total of seven open and 41 covered piers with a capacity of 2,813 cars on their tracks; 3,090,351 square feet of covered warehouse space; berthing capacity for 115 ships, and 417.5 miles of trackage.

Municipal (terminals leased) and publicly-owned terminals aggregate nine open and 6 covered piers with a capacity of 1,280 cars on their tracks; 3,427,000 square feet of covered warehouse space; berthing capacity for 25 ships, and 62 miles of trackage.

Independent terminals have two open and 16 covered piers; capacity on tracks for 1,455 cars; 4,566,802 square feet of covered warehouse space; and berthing capacity for 20 ships.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has additional terminal facilities at Little Creek, in the lower Chesapeake Bay, between Ocean View and Lynnhaven Inlet, constructed during the past two years, at a cost of several million dollars.

Industries

The advantages of Norfolk-Portsmouth as a manufacturing location are becoming continually more evident to manufacturers as they become better acquainted with the favorable basic conditions existing at this port.

Texas Company's Refinery and Storage Tanks

The industries of Norfolk-Portsmouth include such a range of activities and products as is represented by automobiles (assembled), silk-weaving, fertilizers, needle trade products, agricultural implements, veneers, rolling steel doors, underwear, paint, cement, sulphur dioxide, food products, coffee-roasting, peanut-cleaning, tobacco-stemming, ship-building and wood-working.

Norfolk-Portsmouth combines the advantages of the contented native labor of the less populous sections of the South with the large flexible supply of a community of considerable size, with a diversity of manufactures. There has been no attempt to agitate unskilled labor. Labor troubles are almost unknown. Wages are low, as compared with those of older industrial sections.

Other manufacturing costs, such as power, fuel and water, are comparatively low. Cheap coal is available in abundance. Local power rates are favorable and are attractive to industrial plants, as compared with those of other parts of the country. Industrial water rates in Norfolk are considerably lower than the average for the 234 American cities reported upon in the September, 1924, proceedings of the American Water Works Association.

The geographical location of Norfolk-Portsmouth is utilized by unusual water and rail transportation facilities (elsewhere described) and favorable freight rates. The result is a general accessibility and availability to the sources of raw materials and to the markets for finished products.

Manufacturing sites which meet practically any requirements as to size, transportation facilities, and availability to labor, power and water supply, are to be had at reasonable cost. These include sites with frontage on deep water, on the Belt Line Railroad, or on one of the port's trunk line railroads.

Building costs are low, largely because the building season is continuous and the costs for labor and for many building materials are relatively low.

The Industrial Commission of the Norfolk - Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce is prepared to furnish detailed information with reference to definite costs of labor, power, fuel, water and taxes, the availability of raw materials, the distribution of finished products, the availability of manufacturing sites, and other fundamental factors relating to the proposed establishment of specific manufacturing enterprises in this community.

The approximate amount of money invested in private manufacturing enterprises in the Norfolk-Portsmouth community is about $100,000,000.

Interior of One of the Power Plants at Norfolk

Steam coal mined in the New River and Pocahontas coal fields immediately available to Norfolk, is said to be higher in desirable qualities than any other in the country. The supply of this coal is abundant and can be laid down at Norfolk at a freight rate advantageous to the consumer. These coal regions are on the rails of transportation lines running directly to Norfolk, assuring the consumer the best possible delivery.

Electric power to large consumers is cheap. Gas and water are good and can be had at reasonable rates.

Labor, under normal conditions, is plentiful, both skilled and common. It is estimated that about 70,000 workers here earn upwards of $70,-000,000 per annum.

Norfolk's Banks

Accepting banking reports as a basis of judgment—and this is universally done—Norfolk, Virginia, is well on the highroad to a greater prosperity than the old city at the gateway to Virginia has previously shown prospect of in the centuries of its existence. This statement, of course, comprehends the sister city of Portsmouth, whose interests are identical and whose individualities are closely merged with the larger city.

Bankers of Norfolk are optimistic, really jubilant, over the future. And they are old-time, staid banking men of an old-time, staid municipality.

They will tell you that Norfolk has never depended upon a boom, that it has grown steadily from Colonial days, with setbacks that would have ruined the future of a place less blessed with natural advantages.

There have been sporadic booms. They have been followed by the expected reactions. But, through it all, the old citizenry of Norfolk and Portsmouth, and the sturdy new blood that has flowed in to help build the section, has remained true to its trust and has worked at all times to make a community that is good to live in and that certifies the safety of capital invested.

Agriculture and Food Production

Norfolk and Portsmouth are located in that part of Virginia known as Tidewater Virginia. They are situated in the center of the most productive and fertile of the Tidewater Virginia farm lands. The consuming population within a radius of 15 miles is approximately 350,000, but this market is insignificant in view of the fact that a half circle extending 500 miles from Norfolk will encompass one-half the population of the nation.

The facilities for transportation are excellent. The Norfolk-Portsmouth community offers every advantage of educational facilities, health, churches, amusements, fine stores and other urban attractions to a greater degree than in many communities of much larger size.

The trucking district is located chiefly within Norfolk, Nansemond, Isle of Wight and Princess Anne counties. The area of this territory, by counties, in square miles is as follows:

Norfolk County	425
Nansemond County	393
Isle of Wight County	352
Princess Anne County	285

As to the intensiveness with which this land can be cultivated, the story can best be told in the words of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in Bulletin 1005, as follows: "The climate conditions in the vicinity of Norfolk-Portsmouth permit the growing of a succession of crops during the year, and the same land is frequently used for the growing of two or more crops within the same year. In consequence, the total acreage of vegetables will undoubtedly exceed by many acres the total area devoted to truck crop production. The winter areas of spinach and kale are duplications of the acreages used for the growing of spring truck crops.

"Similarly, certain crops are extensively interplanted, as in the case of beans and peas with strawberries, peas, with cucumbers, potatoes with newly-set beds of strawberries, and other less frequent combinations.

"It is probable that some 5,000 acres of duplication should thus be allowed for and that the total land area used for truck crop production in the Norfolk-Portsmouth district annually is about 50,000 acres."

Again let the Department of Agriculture tell the story in the same bulletin quoted above, in regard to the climate.

"The Norfolk-Portsmouth trucking district constitutes the most northern area where it is the common practice to produce vegetable crops throughout the year for shipment to more northern markets.

"According to the records of the United States Weather Bureau for the Norfolk Station, the region has an annual mean precipitation of 49.29 inches, well distributed throughout the year, and the mean annual temperature is 59.2° F. The average date of the first killing frost in the fall is November 12th, and of the last in the spring, March 27th.

"In general, a frost-free season of about 230 days would seem to be indicated. The conditions are such also that certain classes of vegetables, notably spinach, kale and cabbage, may be grown throughout the winter season."

An analysis of the marketing periods in the Tidewater section, as prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, shows a continuous movement of crops to the consuming centers the entire year. Any truck grower in this vicinity can maintain such a record as that outlined by the Department in the following language:

"The continuous production of truck crops in the Norfolk district throughout the year, and the relative volume of production in the different seasons, are indicated by the periods of normal shipment for the different important crops.

"Irish potatoes are shipped from early June to the middle or latter part of July. Usually the greater volume of shipment lies between June 10th and June 30th.

"Strawberries are shipped largely from the last of April to the middle of May, with shipments continuing until the end of that month.

"Cabbage is shipped from April 1st to June 10th.

"Cucumbers, grown under sash, are shipped throughout the month of May, while the field-grown crop is marketed chiefly during June and July.

"Radishes are shipped from early April to the first of July.

"Lettuce is marketed during March and April in the spring, and again from the latter part of September until well into December in the fall.

"Egg plant is coming to be an important summer crop, marketed in the latter part of June, throughout July, and into August.

"Cantaloupes are shipped from the latter part of June until a little past the middle of August.

"Beets are shipped from the 20th of April until July.

"Snap beans are shipped in the spring from about June 1st to July 20th, and in the fall during October and the early part of November.

"Peas are marketed in the spring from the end of April to early June, and in the fall from about September 20th to October 25th.

"Tomatoes from hothouses are marketed from just before Christmas throughout the winter months, and the field crop from the middle of June until the end of October.

"Spinach is shipped from the last days of October throughout the winter months and until the middle of April.

"Kale is shipped from the first of November until the middle of April.

"Sweet potatoes are shipped as they are dug, from the latter part of August, to the end of October and from storage throughout the winter and early spring months well into April.

"These facts indicate that the Norfolk-Portsmouth district is marked by year-round activity in trucking, but that the greater acreage and greater volume of business arise from the production of early spring and summer crops."

These quotations from official reports of the Department of Agriculture serve to give an idea of the wide diversity of truck crops possible in the Tidewater section, and the year-round flow of revenue toward the farms. But this is only a part of the story. As an illustration of what can be done, a Princess Anne County farmer exhibited the following products from a single farm at the Princess Anne County fair: Wheat, corn, oats, beans, buckwheat, onions, beets, parsnips, cabbage, cymblings, grapes, pears, cherries, raspberries, apples, kafir corn, millet, peas, pea hay, clover hay, sugar cane, cotton, egg plant, potatoes, sweet potatoes, peppers, tomatoes, okra, watermelons, cantaloupes, carrots, cauliflower, peaches, figs, chestnuts, hazelnuts, oysters, turkey eggs, guinea eggs, hen eggs and Cuban yams.

This exhibit did not include the livestock and poultry that are a source of considerable profit in the Tidewater section.

Without desiring to weary the reader with constant repetition of the superiority of the Norfolk-Portsmouth section over the other food-producing areas of the United States, it is worth while to consider the seemingly endless variety of edibles and delicacies in which land, sea and air abound here.

The truck fields present every vegetable indigenous to climate and soil: Berries, cherries, melons, grapes, figs, peaches, apples and other fruits of the temperate zone, and all varieties of grain and forage.

Fish are a source of constant epicurean delight. Hard and soft crabs, prawn, oysters and clams abound. In fact, the Tidewater section enjoys a world-wide reputation for its oysters of the Lynnhaven, Little Bay, Horn Harbor, Mobjack and other varieties, famous even among the capitals of Europe.

Small game, winged and furred, quail, duck, geese, snipe, squirrels, rabbits, shore birds—and even deer and bear—are to be had in abundance. Duck and geese attract hunters from far and wide every winter.

Native veal, lamb and mutton always demand a fancy price, and for poultry, the Norfolk-Portsmouth section is excelled nowhere.

It is pertinent to call attention to the fact that the Norfolk-Portsmouth section enjoys the distinction of having shown some of the greatest corn yields to the acre of any spot in the country. From eighty to one hundred bushels an acre without fertilizer is not at all an unusual occurrence. Experiments on the same pieces of land over periods of several years have shown yields of over ninety bushels to the acre.

The humble peanut, once associated principally with circus day, the push-cart man on the corner and the baseball game, has become a greater factor in American food production. Peanut butter, peanut oil (the finest olive oil substitute yet discovered), peanut meal, peanut candy and many other peanut products are on the market today.

Virginia produces annually about $5,000,000 worth of peanuts, most of this production being confined to the counties of the Tidewater section. Norfolk-Portsmouth, and Suffolk in Nansemond County are the greatest peanut markets in the world, and a very considerable tonnage of the production is cleaned, or otherwise adapted for food purposes in great industrial plants in these two cities.

As a staple crop, the peanut ranks among the best and most useful. It is one of the most dependable of crops, so far as production is concerned, and sections of the South which have had trouble with the boll weevil are using it as a means of averting financial disaster.

The fame of Virginia hams, particularly the "Smithfield" ham, has encircled the globe. The Smithfield could never have attained the reputation it enjoys as one of the greatest of epicurean delicacies had not the climate, soil and other conditions in Tidewater Virginia been so favorable to the production of pork.

It is a fact established by long and careful experiments that in no other section of the country can pork of a high grade be produced more cheaply. Not only is the cost of production low, but the East offers an unusually good market for hogs, as the consumption is considerably greater than production.

The long crop season permits of all-year pasturage, the hogs being raised cheaply by grazing them on forage crops, using grain in only a supplementary way to finish them off for market.

Superior curing methods, flesh of exceptional flavor and firmness, and a well established reputation make possible very unusual profits from hog-raising in Tidewater Virginia. Production, curing and marketing of high-grade hams and bacon have been the basis of some very considerable fortunes in this section in the past few years.

There is a steady and ever-increasing local demand for home-grown meats.

The most casual investigator can readily appreciate the unusual opportunity for profit offered by dairying in the Norfolk-Portsmouth section. Climate, opportunity for grazing the entire year, and cheap production of forage crops are essentials that offer convincing testimony, but the most significant factor is the splendid market available.

Clover, timothy, alfalfa and other forage crops are produced in abundance, some of the yields to the acre being very unusual. Soy beans show splendid yields, being grown for hay, for grazing and for the bean. Different varieties are used for various purposes, and the yield of beans is from eighteen to forty bushels per acre. The health of live stock in this section is unusually good, and the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth have health departments which are co-operating in every possible way with the dairymen, to the end that the highest possible standard may be maintained.

Seafood Center

Norfolk is also the center of a large seafood industry. The cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth last year marketed nearly $2,000,000 worth of oysters. The total value of oysters and other seafoods of Tidewater annually is around $25,000,000, and it is estimated that the volume ranges from 750,000 to 1,000,000 gallons. Hampton, another of the group of communities on Hampton Roads, is the outstanding hard crab and crab meat center of the country. Two crab houses at Hampton have facilities for preserving crab meat by canning, so that it may be shipped to distant markets and may be kept indefinitely. These are the only two canneries of the Atlantic crab in the world so far as is known here.

There are about a dozen crab houses in Hampton, one in Phoebus, and on the south side of Hampton Roads there are five houses in Portsmouth and one in Norfolk. The value of the raw crab industry to Hampton is about $300,000 or $400,000 annually, and about half as much is added by the process of picking, packing and canning.

Norfolk is one of the leading markets of the country in the handling of fresh and frozen fish, occupying the position of an important distributing center for a territory including Virginia, central and southern West Virginia, the North Carolina Piedmont, and parts of South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee. During December, January and February some fish are brought to Norfolk, even from the Great Lakes, the West Coast and Alaska, for distribution. The principal fish supplied from local sources are herring, shad, croaker, trout or weak fish, flounder, spot and butterfish. Of these, croakers represent perhaps half the value of the total catch the trout making up about two-thirds of the remainder. While these are the leading commercial fish, there are numerous other fish caught in smaller quantities. The spot is a smaller fish, weighing about half a pound, reaching maturity about the middle of August. It is shipped, however, only to a very slight extent. Shad formerly occurred in great abundance locally, but it has been becoming more and more scarce and is now of relatively small importance. Croakers are usually the most plentiful and the cheapest fish in the local market, and while they are generally considered somewhat less delicate and less palatable than trout, they find a ready market in Norfolk's territory and in the South generally.

Harbor---Climate

The channel to Norfolk proper, through Hampton Roads has been improved to a depth of 40 feet minimum, mean low tide, and is 750 feet in width. There is a tidal range of only 2½ feet and the harbor of Hampton Roads offers safe anchorage to an unlimited number of vessels. The combined fighting and commercial fleets of the world could anchor safely in Hampton Roads and there would still be room for more fleets. The wire expanse of Norfolk's harbor—an area of 41 square miles with approximately fifty miles of waterfront—means that the Port of Norfolk can never suffer traffic congestion. This, plus the climate and natural advantages of the port gives manufacturers, shippers and carriers a traffic gateway at Norfolk that cannot be surpassed.

On several occasions, the U. S. S. Saratoga and the U. S. S. Lexington came into Hampton Roads and navigated the 40 foot channel to the Norfolk Navy Yard, under their own steam, without the aid of tugs. They made the turns without difficulty, with plenty of room to spare. The Saratoga and the Lexington are two of the largest ships afloat. Both ships are 888 feet in length, have a beam of 106 feet, and carry a crew of 2,000 men and 125 airplanes. Each ship has a displacement tonnage of 41,000 and together they represent an investment of $60,000,000. The S. S. George Washington also came in and was taken to the Navy Yard under her own steam, without tug aid.

The climate of Norfolk is balmy. The immense anchorage grounds of wide, calm waters are ever ice-free. There are few fogs and no serious storms. Fifty-nine per cent of daylight hours are sunny. The mean annual temperature is 59.4 degrees, with remarkable freedom from extremes of heat and cold. In Norfolk, it is practically "shipping weather" all the time. Nature gave Norfolk one of the finest harbors in the world. Providence has added the permanent endowment of ideal climate for shipping.

What the Weather Man Says

Statistics of the United States Weather Bureau show the following mean temperatures for the Virginia Seashore or the Norfolk area:

Annual	59.4°
Spring	57.2°
Summer	76.8°
Autumn	61.6°

Norfolk's City Government

No city can be better fundamentally than its government. Having given commission-manager government the most exacting test possible, Norfolk is today more than willing to be judged by its method of administering city business.

Commission-manager government, as it operates in Norfolk, has made a conspicuous success because it puts community welfare above politics, business methods and practices above "expediency."

For 182 years prior to September 1, 1918, Norfolk struggled with the old council-mayor form of government in its various adaptations. During this period, bi-cameral government managed to exhibit all its undesirable features and practically no advantages. The mayor had just enough power to further tangle the snarls that the double-barreled council generally managed to get the city's affairs into, and a bad situation was further complicated by the Board of Control, similar to the Administrative Board of some cities.

September 1, 1918, marked the beginning of a new era in community development for Norfolk. On that date commission manager government was inaugurated, with a council of five members, elected from the city at large.

From the very beginning there was no basis for comparison between the old form of government and the new. It was a case of contrasts in every detail—action as contrasted with delay; results as opposed to haphazard methods; a comprehensive, logical, continuous correlated plan of community development and public improvements vastly different from the old-time policy of ward and precinct "trading" for segregated and unrelated improvements.

These are some of the outstanding differences between the old plan and the new.

But the real story is best told by the things that can be seen and participated in by every citizen, investor and visitor—miles of splendidly paved streets, parks, playgrounds, splendid schools, one of the country's finest water supplies, a new city market, a model municipal union terminal for the handling of ocean commerce, a municipal grain elevator of the most modern type, better sanitation, and a great number of other improvements that have been the direct result of Norfolk's present form of government.

The commission-manager plan, as it operates in Norfolk, is simple in the extreme.

A council of five members is elected from the city at large. One member is selected as chairman and ex-officio mayor by vote of the council. The chairman has no power of veto, however, and his duties as mayor are confined chiefly to acting as spokesman for the city government.

The city manager is appointed by the council, at a salary fixed by council.

Every distinct branch of the government is organized into a department, with a director in charge who is answerable to the city manager for the operation of his department. The city manager is in turn responsible to the council. Concentration of responsibility is thus accomplished in the simplest and most effective manner.

The Seventh Hole, Truxtun Manor Golf Course

The Eleventh or "Lake Hole" at the Cavalier Country Club Golf Course

The departments are as follows: Department of Finance, Department of Law, Department of Public Welfare, Department of Public Safety, Department of Public Works.

There are also the City Clerk and the City Purchasing Agent, who make purchases for all departments: School Board, Civil Service Commission, Port Commission, City Planning Commission and the Court of Law and Chancery, Circuit Court, Corporation Court, Police Court, Civil Court, Commonwealth's Attorney (prosecutor) and Public Defender.

Under the old form of government there was a favorite indoor pastime entitled "laying it on the table." Many highly constructive propositions died a quick and comparatively painless death on this same table. Today the reverse is true. The council of five meets around a table with the city manager at least once a week, sometimes several times a week, when necessary, just as would the directors and general manager of a corporation. When a matter comes up it is either disposed of at once or referred to the city manager for investigation and a later report. The city has learned that delays are expensive and has reduced such expense to a minimum.

The ideal government is the one that gives first consideration to the highest possible improvement of living conditions. This has been easily the outstanding feature of Norfolk's present form of government, on the theory that the real test of a worth while city is whether it is a good place in which to live.

Despite the large amounts expended for public improvements of various kinds, Norfolk's credit is today better than at any previous time in its history, and its securities are being marketed at a premium, on a very low interest basis. Here again is unmistakable evidence of the benefits accruing from the application of strict business methods to municipal government. A scientific sinking fund plan is taking care of all bond issues as they mature, and the city is in every respect on a firm financial basis.

Few cities in the country have such a progressive educational policy as that developed by Norfolk since 1918. Under commission-manager government, the city's expenditures for new school buildings have aggregated more than five million dollars and more than a half million dollars has been added to teachers' salaries. Among the new buildings are two junior high schools, each costing more than a half million dollars, and a new industrial high school for negro students, also costing more than a half million dollars. The expenditures quoted above do not include the outlay for many new playgrounds in the vicinity of the various schools.

Water Supply

For about fifty years the old form of government discussed the need for a larger water supply. One commission after another investigated, employed engineers, and presented reports which died "on the table." It required only a short time, however, for the new government to submit a bond issue to the people, build a new plant at a new source of supply, and connect the city with sufficient water for a city of a million people, with a capacity for development to an almost unlimited degree. The cost of the new system was approximately $6,000,000. One of the conspicuous effects of this development has been the creation of a much more advantageous industrial condition.

Marked increase in efficiency, morale and personnel has characterized the police and fire departments under commission-manager government. The number of men in each department has been greatly augmented from time to time, and equipment vastly improved, in addition to substantial increases in rates of compensation. Norfolk's fire department during the last decade has completely changed from horse-drawn to motor-driven apparatus.

Other Improvements

The Municipal Market was completed the latter part of 1923 at a cost of $500,000. This is one of the finest city markets in the United States.

Among miscellaneous improvements, the new government has built about fifty miles of new water mains and ten miles of new sewers and has installed several hundred new street lights, in addition to improving the lighting systems on all the principal streets.

When the new form of government was instituted it found Norfolk with a little over seven square miles of land area, densely populated. Splendidly-developed suburbs were on every side, but the city councils had never felt like facing the problem of an annexation plan which gave the city a total area of thirty miles and increased its population nearly 35,000.

Finances

New enterprises, millions of dollars in new buildings, and big increases in property values under the new form of government, with the very recent annexations, have more than doubled the revenues of the city.

Public Schools

Norfolk has more than 40 public schools.

The city expends annually more than $1,300,000 for school operations. Nearly 24,000 pupils are enrolled in the schools. The schools for the white pupils number 27, with 531 teachers and principals. The schools for the colored pupils number 13, with 228 teachers. The teachers represent selections from the leading college and teacher-training institutions of the country.

The Norfolk school system is well planned. It is of the most advanced type. The pupils at completion of the training are well equipped to enter business life, a university, or to take up a vocation. The girls are especially versed in housekeeping and domestic science, and in many branches of business, particularly stenographic and clerical work. The boys have a good working knowledge of radio, aviation, gas engines, turbines, machinery, and other subjects in which they are known to be keenly interested.

The grade, junior high and high school buildings are of the latest type. They are the last word in sanitation, efficiency and architecture. The construction cost for one of the buildings alone was $700,000.

Churches

Religion has a large place in the community life of Norfolk-Portsmouth. There are 153 churches in Norfolk alone. Of these 70 are white Protestant churches, 68 colored Protestant churches, 6 white Roman Catholic churches, 1 colored Roman Catholic church, 1 Greek Orthodox Catholic church and 7 Jewish synagogues. From the latest figures available these 153 churches have a membership of 64,218.

Recreational Attractions

Norfolk has been remarkably blessed by Nature as an all-year playground. While bathing at Virginia Beach and Ocean View is a popular pastime from May to November, the wonderful climate makes golf a year 'round sport. There is no better duck shooting anywhere on the Atlantic Coast than in the Back Bay, south of Norfolk, and fish of great variety abound in nearby waters. Lynnhaven Inlet, famous for its oysters, is situated only a short distance from the city.

Virginia Beach is situated 18 miles due east of Norfolk and is accessible over the electric division of the Norfolk-Southern Railroad and by automobile and motorbus over a concrete boulevard. During the season from May to October the hotels, boarding houses and private cottages for rent have a total capacity of approximately 20,000 persons. Additional facilities will provide accommodations for at least 5,000 more persons. A big new resort hotel, "The Cavalier," costing $2,000,000, and one of the finest of its kind in the South, was opened in 1926.

At Virginia Beach is located the famous Princess Anne Country Club golf course, and the new Cavalier Country Club course, pronounced by leading professionals to be two of the sportiest and most picturesque courses in the country. The courses are cut through pine forests, and are flanked by the ocean on the east and by Linkhorn Bay on the west, are open throughout the year.

Surf bathing at Virginia Beach is delightful from May to November. Horseback riding throughout the picturesque Cape Henry desert, is another popular outdoor sport which can be enjoyed at Virginia Beach throughout the year. There are two casinos and amusement parks, both equipped with high-class amusements typical of the most modern resorts.

Ocean View, belonging to the City of Norfolk, is situated just nine miles from the heart of the city, on an electric railway line and a smooth-paved boulevard. This resort, together with Willoughby Beach, which adjoins it, has a frontage of several miles on a beautiful stretch of white sand beach overlooking lower Chesapeake Bay and the entrance to the Virginia Capes from the Atlantic Ocean.

Ocean View Amusement Park, rated as the third largest and one of the finest in the country, has been improved to the extent of nearly one million dollars during the past three years. The amusement devices at the park are ultra-modern, and Kiddy Land—where the children are entertained—is equipped with the latest things in the amusement world, for children.

The New Nansemond Hotel, at Ocean View, is one of the smart resort hotels in America. It is situated on the waterfront and is only a short distance from the large amusement park at the View. Nearby is the new eighteen hole Ocean View golf course.

Ocean View also has many smaller hotels and numerous cottages. The View is famous throughout America for its fine fishing and excellent bathing.

Norfolk's tourist camp is situated at Ocean View. The camp is on a tract of 40 acres owned by the Federal Government, and overlooks Chesapeake Bay and the entrance to the Virginia Capes from the Atlantic Ocean.

Along the front of the camp is one of the finest and safest bathing beaches on the coast. Within a stone's throw of this beach some of the finest fishing in Tidewater Virginia is available during the spring, summer and fall months. Motor-boating and other water sports are at the very front door of the camp.

The camp itself is carved out of a forest of wateroaks, bayberries, hollies and other beautiful evergreens, each camp site in its own little nook, and shielded from the remainder of the camp by a natural screen of evergreens. The camp has a modern rest house with ample sanitary facilities and is equipped with water, sewers and electric lights by the city government under which it is operated. It is also under the city police protection and is operated under the direction of the city health officer by a competent and experienced camp manager.

Golf is a year 'round outdoor sport in the country surrounding Norfolk. With an average annual temperature of approximately 60 degrees and with sunshine during approximately 70 per cent of the daylight hours, there are very few days in the year when golf cannot be enjoyed on the courses in and around Norfolk.

It's always either fishing or hunting season or both in the country around Norfolk. In no part of America is there finer wild fowl shooting and few sections of the country can boast of the fresh water and salt water fishing afforded in the inland and coastal country within a radius of fifty miles of Norfolk. Perhaps in no other part of the United States is there a greater variety of sports afield and afloat.

Cape Henry, where the waters of the Atlantic and Chesapeake unite, is five miles north of Virginia Beach and 17 miles northeast of Norfolk. The Cape is reached by an electric railway line and concrete boulevard from the city. It is the spot first touched by the foot of the original settlers of Jamestown. They landed there April 26, 1607.

The two capes were named for the two eldest sons of King James I, Princes Henry and Charles. Unfortunately, Prince Henry, who was very popular, died before he reached the throne. His brother became Charles I.

The location of Cape Henry is delightful. The Atlantic stretches away to the east, the Chesapeake to the north and Lynnhaven Roads to the west.

The Casino is old and small, but comfortable. The bathing is excellent. The beach slopes gently, the sand is hard, and the surf is strong, but not dangerous. The oyster roasts of Cape Henry are justly noted. They are served in the Casino at moderate prices.

The old Cape Henry Lighthouse is an object of great interest. It was the first structure of the kind erected by the United States (1792). A tablet to the memory of those who first landed at Cape Henry in 1607 has been placed on the old Lighthouse by the A. P. V. A. The climb to the old Lighthouse is worth while and the view is very fine. The new Lighthouse is of recent construction. Visitors are admitted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. The large lamp is well worth seeing.

The first Fresnel lens was introduced in the United States in 1841 and was installed in the Cape Henry Light. By 1859 all the country's light stations were equipped with these lenses.

An interesting fact about the old Lighthouse is that during its many years of service it made use of practically every kind of fuel oil. Its lamps burned, in turn, fish oil, sperm oil, colza oil, lard oil, and kerosene, as the increasing expense of each compelled a change.

The present tower, completed in 1881, is 165 feet high and is built of cast iron plates. The illuminants used have included sperm oil, lard oil, kerosene, and since 1922, electricity. It was the first lighthouse in the country to be fitted with the latest type of electrical equipment.

The lens is built of many pieces of beautifully cut and polished glass. It consists of a central belt of reflectors, forming a hollow cylinder six feet high and 30 inches in diameter. The original lamps had five concentric wicks, and later a Welsbach mantle was installed to utilize kerosene vapor.

A 1,000-watt electric lamp is now used, which gives a candlepower through the lens, of 80,000. The light is visible for 19 miles and shows two one-second flashes followed by one seven-second flash every 20 seconds.

This station is also equipped with a powerful air siren giving a four-second blast every 45 seconds, and with a radio fog signal, which enables vessels equipped with radio direction finding apparatus to take accurate bearings of the station even in thick fogs or snow storms, and find their way into port.

The lofty sand hills, which have been formed by the northeast winds blowing so frequently from the sea, are worth the arduous climb. The view from the hills is fine, especially landward over the forest which have been and are still being covered by the ever-encroaching sand. The climb can be made easily on a wet day.

Summary of Advantages

A brief summary of some of the things that are attracting nation-wide and world-wide attention to Norfolk will give an idea of the conditions that have ushered in Norfolk's new progress. Most of these things have been referred to heretofore and are only reiterated because of the vital part they are playing in the period of development the city has just entered.

Norfolk is the world's greatest coal-ing port.

Norfolk is the second port in the United States in total volume of waterborne tonnage.

Norfolk is the nation's fourth cotton port.

Norfolk is the greatest peanut port in the United States.

Norfolk is America's greatest center for naval activity—government expenditures in recent years, $129,955,-905.

Norfolk is one of the world's great mahogany ports.

Norfolk is the second largest fertilizer manufacturing center in America.

Norfolk is the country's greatest truck-producing center.

Norfolk is on Hampton Roads, the finest natural harbor.

Norfolk has eight great railroads, more than 50 general cargo steamship lines, 20 coal cargo lines, and many inland and coastwise steamer lines.

Norfolk is one of the greatest seafood shipping points.

Norfolk has 25 miles of fine bathing beaches.

Norfolk has a climate that permits of outdoor work the year 'round.

Norfolk is one of America's all-year playgrounds.

These are by no means all of Norfolk's advantages, but the things enumerated give in concise form many of the outstanding ones.

MODERN CONVENIENCES

Lost, sometimes, amid the more spectacular conveniences, such as the auto, telephone, radio, or aircraft, yet the

is probably the greatest convenience of this or any other age. Ponder, for a few moments, on the service rendered by the city catalog. It would not be stretching matters to say that it can accurately answer a million questions about the municipality it represents. Familiarize yourself with this truly wonderful book. Learn how to use it to the greatest advantage. Study the index and miscellaneous information section for a few moments. The gold mine of local facts and information will surprise you. You will learn things about your own city that you never knew before.

Write for booklet, "The Directory—A Business Asset."

Names Appearing in Black Letters

IN THIS DIRECTORY are the names of those people who ACCOMPLISH THINGS and are entitled to favorable consideration, if for no other reason than their public-spirited support of measures which make for progress. They represent that ENERGY AND PUSH so essential to the commercial prosperity of the City, and in dealing with them no mistake will be made. The publishers are honored in thus making them better known to the public.

Building and Loan Associations are the nationally recognized medium for the acquirement of homes. When you buy your home, buy through an association with liberal privileges to the borrower, such as these:

This Association charges no brokerage.

It makes no charge for permission to pay out the balance at any time.

It gives full credit for all dividends on the borrower's account even if paid out before maturity.

This is a mutual association, and its earnings, after the payment of its regular interest charges on capital (at 6%) and the payment of the expense of operation, are credited as dividends upon the books of its borrowers and stockholders.

The dividends (or amount credited as return interest upon the books of its borrowing stockholders) have at no time during the past fifteen years been less than 8 per cent per year. These dividends are declared semi-annually and are compounded.

We lend three-fourths of what we consider the value of the property.

Payments are 40 cents per week on each $100.00 borrowed. This includes principal and interest. Experience has shown that this payment will mature the stock or pay off the loan in nearly exactly six years. But remember, the loan may be paid off at any time without the payment of interest ahead, without additional charge for such privilege, and without forfeiture of dividends. Payments on long term stock are 30 cents per week on each $100.00 borrowed.

MONEY TO LEND

On Improved Real Estate

We Have Four Plans :

- | | | | |
|----|--------------------|-----------------|--------|
| 1— | Dues and Interest, | 30c weekly each | $100. |
| 2— | “ “ | 40c “ “ | $100. |
| 3— | “ “ | 1.15 monthly “ | $100. |
| 4— | “ “ | 1.65 “ “ | $100. |

Interest rate is the same under either plan

Our forty years continuous experience in real estate finance has been of great help to thousands of home owners. It is yours for the asking.

We can supply you with a home on very easy terms. Consult with us.

SYSTEMATIC SAVING, in “MUTUAL” shares is very profitable. Buy $500 to $1000 in shares and pay for them on the budget plan.

Your Good Will Is Our Most Valuable Asset

To find out whether large portions, low prices, convenient location, or prompt service was responsible for its patronage, a large restaurant made a survey with a view of playing up the feature that was found to be most popular.

We want to do the same thing, but without having to make a survey. We know that most of our business is not primarily the result of what we do, or say, or sell, but rather of the good will of our satisfied customers who like our way of doing business well enough to tell their friends about us.

And so we are constantly "playing up" to our old customers and encouraging our new ones by everyday offerings of distinctive merchandise and attractive prices.

W. G. Swartz Co.
(INCORPORATED)

All Thru the State of Virginia

There are over 45 drug stores operated under the name of Peoples and Peoples Service Drug Stores in the States of Virginia and Maryland. These busy stores are all occupied in serving their customers with the best of Drugs, Toilet Articles and sundries at the very lowest cash prices. This chain of stores is the fourth largest in the United States, and rapidly growing.

MONEY TO LOAN

TO HOUSEKEEPERS and salaried people in amounts up to $300 on household furniture, notes, stocks, bonds or most anything of value. We specialize on furniture loans because borrowing on furniture is the very best way for housekeepers to borrow money. This way does not obligate you to some one else for signing your note. You can pay us back in small monthly payments to suit your convenience.

We are Bonded to the State Banking Department for the protection of people who borrow from us. This assures you of being treated right at all times. We will appreciate an opportunity to talk the matter over with you at your convenience.

The Empire Co. has been under its present manager for 18 years. When in need of money, give us a trial. Let us pay off your present loan with other companies or consolidate your small obligations for you.

We guarantee quick, satisfactory and confidential service.

A Man With Money Enough

To Own and Operate an Automobile Can and Does Buy Other Things.

In fact he is "your meat" if you sell what individuals use.

Automobile owners represent the buying power of every community. We Can Give You their Names and Addresses and tell you just what cars they own.

We Can Give You Also All Other Kinds of Business Prospect Lists.

We shall be glad to have you write us for catalogue and information.

HILL DIRECTORY CO., Inc.
